

Smorgasbord Tonite Thanksgiving Convo Will Feature Offers Food, Dancing Panel, Chorus, Speech Students

"You can have all you can eat at tonight's Smorgasbord," declared Harlan Cain, head of the auxiliary enterprises at the University. The buffet dinner will be held in the Student Center. Everyone is invited. Serving will begin at 6 p. m. and continue until 7.

For the $1 meal ticket, faculty, students, staff and guests will have their choice of four different kinds of fish, six varieties of cheese, roast turkey, a selection of potatoes and all kinds of salads. Beverages will also be served.

The Center will be decorated along the Thanksgiving theme for this second Smorgasbord. Cain has started the Smorgasbord tradition at the University as a part of his policy for new and different meal plans. The first Smorgasbord was held after the All-School Sing last spring. In addition to the Smorgasbord, Cain has also had a pizza supper and promises many more such dinners for the future.

After the Smorgasbord, the Center will be cleared for dancing. The juke box will provide the music for the after-dinner party. The cafeteria will also be open to serve dinner to students and faculty who have night classes and meetings.

The Student Center will close at 2 p. m. today to prepare for the Smorgasbord.

Warriors Sponsor Basketball Rally

Omaha University's first basketball pep rally of the year will be held in the Student Center at noon Monday.

The Warriors, men's pep organization, will sponsor the rally, which will feature the introduction of the 1952-53 basketball team by coach Virgil Yelkin.

Warrior President Harold Sage said that the rally will also feature cheers and the pep band. Sage added that the Warriors will present their annual trophy to the outstanding basketball player of 1951-52 during the half-time of the Emporia cage game Monday evening.

The trophy, which was won by Bobe Rose in 1951, is awarded after a vote by coaches of Omaha U. opponent teams. Each coach names the player he believes to be outstanding on the OU team.

Class Proxy Calls Senior Meeting

The first senior class meeting will be held tomorrow noon in Room 303. Senior President Aksel Schmidt has called the meeting to select senior sponsors, plan Commencement activities and discuss the senior section of the Tomahawk.

Schmidt asks all seniors to attend the important meeting.

Cadets to Promote OU Site, Angels

Omaha may be the site of the 1954 national Arnold Air Society convention, and OU's Angels Flight may be a national group after this year's AAS convention.

Two OU AF-ROTC cadets, Cadet Capt. Jack Katz and Cadet Capt. Robert Biegel, will represent the Omaha unit at the convention this weekend. Katz is commanding officer of the Arnold Society, and Biegel is executive officer. Accompanying the cadets will be Maj. Robert Whaley and Maj. John Burnett from the OU staff.

The OU representatives will present a plan for the '54 convention to be brought to Omaha. They will point out Omaha's central position in the nation and the city's reputation as a convention city in their presentation.

Included in the plan for nationalizing the Angels Flight are a suggestion that each individual unit govern its own coed auxiliaries and a possible plan for a national headquarters in Omaha.

The national convention is being held in Los Angeles Friday and Saturday. The OU representatives will leave Omaha Thursday morning and return Sunday evening.

The cadet delegates will present their formal report on the convention at the regular Arnold Society meeting Dec. 7.

Maj. Whaley points out that the Air Force will not sanction air travel for any cadets except the regular representatives of the AAS chapters over the nation.

Five Cadets Pass Promotion Exams

Five AF-ROTC advanced cadets have passed the written and practical examinations for the rank of cadet first lieutenant.

The five are all members of the Air Science III class. They are Paul Fesler, John Haury, John Jeter, Gordon Morphew and Frank Schuchart.

Schuchart, who is commanding officer of the wing administration group, has announced that tests for cadet corporal and cadet sergeant will be given each Monday morning at 7 a. m.

He added that all cadets who wish to take the examinations for non-commissioned ranks above that of sergeant must appear before the cadet nomination board. After they have appeared, they should be nominated for the next grade, and will become eligible to take the tests.

Schuchart pointed out that there are too few cadets trying to take the promotion tests. He stressed that these cadet ranks can be important when cadets are considered for admission into the advanced course.

OU Opens Winter Television Series

Omaha University launched its winter series of television shows last night on WOW-TV. Basketball was featured on the first of the "OU-4 U" shows.

Virgil Yelkin, University athletic director, and Gary Rosenberg, head of the Iowa-Nebraska Coaches-Officials Association, were interviewed by Bruce Linton of the speech department.

Rosenberg discussed new rules and rule changes that will apply to the coming season. The Indian cage squad was also seen on film.

The show was produced and directed by Linton and Harold Winslow, program director for KWOU.

"OU-4-U" will be seen every three weeks. Omaha University will share the 6 p. m. spot with Creighton and Nebraska Universities.

"Ouampi," the Omaha University fighting Indian, made his television debut on the show. Ouampi figured in both the opening and closing scenes.

Class of '56 Will Present Annual Revue Wednesday

With the sound of tapping feet, singing voices and comedian's jokes the Freshmen Talent Show will go on stage, Wednesday morning, Dec. 3, in the auditorium. The Revue will begin at 9:30. Classes will be shortened for the show.

The Freshman Talent Show is a variety revue. The first freshmen show last year featured record pantomime, singers in quartette, duet and solo form, tap dancing and ballet, musical instrument solos, comedy and skits. The entire run of acts was tied together by a master of ceremonies, who developed the between-act patter and ad lib for the show. The master of ceremonies also had a short routine of his own as part of the regular act sequence.

Tryouts for the 1952 Talent Show were held last night in the auditorium. Candidates for the Master of Ceremonies also tried out.

Judges for the tryouts were the freshmen, class officers, freshmen Student Council representatives, Dr. Edwin Clark, Don Pfisterer, associate dean of students, and Dr. Robert Fiestler, assistant professor of music.

Class officer are Dick Matthews, Don Shroeder and Rae Johnson. Mary Cosford, Mary Jane Jeter, Kyle Petit and Gary Luse are the council members.

"This year it is especially fitting that we offer a prayer of gratitude for the spirit of unity which binds together all parts of our country and makes us one nation indivisible."

Tyson Does Debate Pairing for Tourney

The schedule of debate teams for the next three tournaments has been made by J. D. Tyson, debate coach.

Pairings made for the Dec. 5 and 6 tourneys at East Oklahoma State Teachers College and Wayne State Teachers College are Donald Blauw-Edward Brailey, Ken Bauer-Robert Dahlhoff, Arlyss Welch-Beatrice Hansen, and Marie Jipp-Beatrice Larson. Others are Sharon Erdkamp-Jean Bednar and Duane Post-Ted Romberg.

Professors Bruce Linton, J. D. Tyson and Hedvig Nyholm will accompany the debaters on the trips. Determination of which tournament each team will attend will be made later.

The University of Nebraska debate tourney, originally scheduled for today, has been postponed until Tuesday, Dec. 9. Freshman debate teams that will make the trip to Lincoln are Beatrice Hanson-Shirley Barnum, Ken Bauer-Mary Cosford and Marie Jipp-Glen Uhe. One more team may be added. Sharon Erdkamp, Theodore Romberg and Duane Post will make the trip and act as judges at the Nebraska tournament.

Tryouts for the varsity debate squad will be held after Christmas vacation. After the squad has been selected, they will begin preparing for scheduled trips to Minneapolis, Bloomington, Ind., Lincoln, for the University of Nebraska Invitational Tournament, and to Kalamazoo, Mich., for the Phi Kappa Delta National Tourney.

Claeson Leaves For Convention

Margaretha Claeson, OU junior, will leave Omaha Monday to attend the Annual Congress of American Industry in New York City. Miss Claeson will fly to the eastern city a day early for a special tour arranged by the Education Department of National Association of Manufacturers. The tour will include a trip to the United Nations Building.

"I am thrilled that I was chosen to attend the conference," said Miss Claeson. "I hope that I will be able to bring back to Nebraska colleges some helpful information." Miss Claeson will represent all Nebraska colleges at the meetings.

Two-Hundred Persons To Attend Dean's Tea

Over two-hundred invitations have been sent to students to attend the Dean's Tea for Students on Dec. 3 from 3 to 5 p. m. Officers of all organizations, faculty sponsors of organizations and Dr. and Mrs. Milo Ball have been issued invitations.

Mrs. Milo Ball, Mrs. Jay B. MacGregor, Mrs. Don Pfisterer and Miss Vera Duerschner will pour. Open-faced sandwiches, cookies, coffee and tea will be served.

Dean Don Pfisterer, Dean Jay B. MacGregor and Dean Mary Padou Young will be in the receiving line.

These words from the "Thanksgiving Proclamation" are the theme of the Omaha University Thanksgiving convocation. The convocation will be held in the auditorium tomorrow morning at 9:30.

Proper Feeling

Dean Jay B. MacGregor asks all students to come to the convocation in "feeling and mood."

The invocation and benediction will be given by Rev. Joe R. Kennedy, religion instructor. Dick Palmquist's reading of the "Thanksgiving Proclamation" will reveal the character of "unity" of "one nation indivisible."

Chorus Assists

Carl Mueller's arrangement of Watt's "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" will be sung by the University chorus. The chorus is under the direction of Richard Brewer, assistant professor of music.

Jewish, Catholic and Protestant religions and the Negro race, will be represented on the Panel of

Statue Inscription

Bruce Linton, head of the speech department, will give the Emma Lazarus poem inscribed on the base of the Statue of Liberty. Those attending the convocation will respond by singing "America, the Beautiful" by Bates, directed by Brewer.

A quotation from Bradford's "History of Plymouth Foundation" given by Brewer will be reminiscent of the first Thanksgiving in America.

Profs Plan Convo

The Thanksgiving observance was planned by the committee on convocations. Members of the committee include Dean MacGregor, William Utley, James Tyson, Bruce Linton, Wilfred Paine, and Martin Bush. Printed programs provided by the committee will be given to students attending the convocation.

Classes will be shortened. The schedule will be as follows: 8-8:45, 8:50-9:25, 9:30-10:20, Convocation; 10:30-11:10, 11:15-11:50.

Benecke to Distribute Directories Tomorrow

Student directories "should be here tomorrow" reports Bob Benecke, student business manager for publications. He said that the printer has promised delivery "for sure" by Monday.

On their arrival, the directories will be distributed in the ticket office in the first floor hall. Students must present their activity ticket in order to receive their book.

The directory includes names, addresses and telephone numbers of day school students, night students, faculty members and campus group memberships.

Happy Thanksgiving Vacation

Students Linger in Center, But Few Stay Six Years

In 1946, when the Student Center, or as students affectionately refer to it, the "Snack Shack," first opened, a smiling, motherly-looking woman busied herself behind the counter pouring coffee, making sandwiches and operating the cash register.

Mrs. Eva Bruner, now supervisor of the Center, recalls the first weeks, when the "Shack" opened. To ease over-crowded cafeteria conditions and to provide quicker food service, the "Shack" opened and hungry, class-skipping students quickly made it the most popular place on campus.

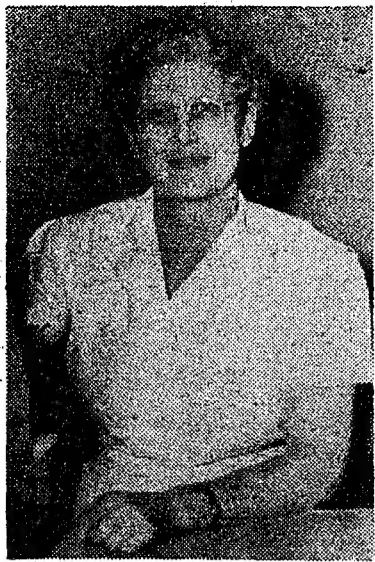

Today, students, faculty and visitors swarm into the place spending a total of eleven or twelve hundred dollars daily.

Mrs. Bruner came to the University in 1945 and worked in the cafeteria until the center opened.

The supervisor enjoys young people and likes her work. During her seven years at OU she explains that she's seen GI's come back to school and seen other boys leave for Korea and return to finish their education.

Tough Day
Mrs. Bruner cites Maie Day, 1948, as the biggest business day for the Center. She recalled that "It was the hardest day I've ever worked," but remembers it even more vividly because she worked all day with a sprained ankle. Cash sales that day totaled nearly $2,500.

The "Shack" was probably most popular in 1947 when servicemen returned, according to Mrs. Bruner. The partition closing off the band room had not then been installed and that part of the Student Center was used for dancing and games of ping pong and cards. "Even with the extra room," she called Mrs. Bruner. "I think student averages suffered as a result of the Shack's popularity."

Mrs. Bruner . . . six years.

During the school months of 1947, the Center staff had difficulty in supplying the demand for cups of coffee. Besides using the double-urn coffee maker, they had to boil water for extra coffee in kettles on the kitchen range.

Arrives Early
Meat for sandwiches is roasted and soups are made in the kitchen, which contains a large range, a dishwasher and many shelves of canned food.

The supervisor arrives at 6:30 every morning to start food preparations. She said she has done everything from ordering food supplies to wiping off tables and sweeping the floor.

She is especially fond of servicemen as both of her sons are in the army. One is a lieutenant stationed at El Paso, the other a captain stationed at Camp Gordon.

The supervisor, her staff of eight women and two student helpers, all work under the OU Food Services program, of which Harlan Cain is director.

Cain is responsible for the recent redecoration of the Center and also for the festive Halloween decorations employed this year. He plans on decorating a "Shack" Christmas tree soon after Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Bruner has one complaint against the "Shack"—the building is without air conditioning. It is forced to close during the hot summer months of July and August.

Students have always referred to the center as the "Shack." More dignified names have been given the place, such as the "Pow-Wow Inn," but "Shack" always remains as the popular reference.

OU Freshman Pilots Plane

Every hour of piloting a plane proves to be a new experience, according to Dick Matthews, OU freshman.

Recently, Matthews flew a Stearman PT-17 to Dos Palos, Calif., under contract. He encountered all kinds of weather and faced other hardships in the open cockpit plane before completing the trip.

He took off from Omaha on a Thursday to deliver the former army trainer plane to the Agair Crop Dusters Corporation in Dos Palos. He was supposed to land the next day, but due to the adverse weather and unavoidable circumstances, the trip took four days.

Flying over Concordia, Kans., Matthews met strong head winds and was forced to fly lower. While bucking the winds, a gust swept a glove off his hand and out of the cockpit.

He spent the first night at Tucumcari, N. M. While unloading the plane, he accidentally pulled the rip cord of his parachute, filling the cockpit with silk. He folded it up and used it for a cushion while flying the next day.

Matthews' flying may blow out of the plane the second day, but he guessed his way to Albuquerque, N. M., where he got another. Heading for Winslow, Ariz., winds blew him off course by about one hundred miles. By the time he found his way to Winslow, it was so late that he stayed there for the night.

While heading for Barstow, Calif., the third day, rain and winds forced him to follow a railroad and a highway. He was finally forced down in a field near the highway.

The fourth day he encountered more bad weather, but finally reached his destination.

He flew a commercial airline back to Omaha—as a passenger.

Matthews' flying map blew out dried hours of flying experience, has a commercial flying license and is working for a flight instructor's rating.

He picks up spare cash by flying for an airplane chartering service in Council Bluffs.

Some day he hopes to have an airplane dealership.

'Officer 2' Fades Away

Omaha University's vigilant of the parking lot has passed from his old haunts to greener pastures.

"Officer 2," for so long the scourge of line straddlers and reserved zone lingerers, has been replaced by a member of Jack Adwers' staff.

"Officer 2" is the signature that appeared on most of the University traffic tickets last year. Students and faculty alike felt the financial sting of the conscientious cop. The ubiquitous man in the blue suit had an uncanny knack for slapping tickets on cars that lingered 31 minutes in the thirty-minute zone.

Some readers may consider "Officer 2's" unfortunate exit as an opportunity to ignore all signs on the parking lot. Jack Adwers, who has charge of parking lot discipline, cautions would-be violators that the parking penal system is still in full force.

It is obvious that the spirit of "Officer 2" still hangs over the parking area. The little billy-clubber, like another fellow in uniform will never die . . . he will just fade away.

Biegel Directs Fourth Room Rearrangement

The AF-ROTC staff room has been drastically rearranged for the fourth time in its unsettled career.

Robert C. Biegel, the unit's perennial watchdog of efficiency, supervised the moving of desks, filing cabinets and organizational charts. He described the big move as an "effort to improve the efficient operation of the staff room."

The most prominent feature of the furniture reshuffle is a large desk in the middle of the floor. This will be the desk at which the wing staff will hold its meetings.

On Dec. 11, 1942, Dean C. W. Helmstadter, director of the war training program at the University, announced that the new radio-code and operators class would be open to new men and women each Monday.

Letters to the Editor . .

Dear Editor:

We have heard many comments about the food in the cafeteria. They were all derogatory. We just attributed the horror stories to empty rumors started by some imaginative student.

A few days ago we had the misfortune to test the truth of this rumor.

Everything people have said about the miserable food in that cafeteria is far too kind. The meat I had was almost completely obscured by the fat on it and what little half-way edible part there was on the plate was as tough as the proverbial shoe leather.

The thing that was like salt in the wound was the price of the meal . . . and I use that last term loosely. For another nickel I could have eaten an excellent meal at a local restaurant that isn't a University-supported operation for students.

If the quality of the cafeteria food doesn't improve I think more students will come to their senses and stop supporting it altogether.

Larry Albert,
Marty Blacker.

Innards Fly

The scientific method has apparently gone too far at Baylor University, Texas. Students going to the biology building have narrowly escaped being hit by flying cats' livers or other animal innards.

This type of thing has been going on for a long time and has been the butt of countless complaints.

Now the department head has issued a statement condemning the entire business and warning the scientists that "This just isn't the way to dispose of used biology experiments."

Traffic lights were installed on Dodge Street and the University drive in November, 1949, after more than five years of petitioning by the Board of Regents.

Sixteen Survive Initial Cage Cut; Alumni Drill

Pflasterer Heads Graduates Against Indians Tomorrow

Sixteen varsity hopefuls survived Coach Virg Yelkin's first squad cut last Friday as the team prepares for its first encounter of the season tomorrow night.

At 8 p. m. the varsity opens its season against the Alumni on the Omaha U. court.

Twelve of the 16 are familiar faces to loyal Omaha University cage fans. Ten of them are from last year's team.

Returning from last season's squad are centers, Don Claussen, Lee Nelson and Larry Johnson; forwards, Dick Davis, Don Fitch, Bob Rose and Fred Shinrock, and guards Bob Mackie, Tom Mosiman and Bob Moscrey.

Two Return

Two men on the first team are back after a one year absence. Bob Chapman, forward, put in some time with the varsity during the 1950-51 season. Last year Chapman passed up varsity competition.

Ralph Pettit, regular from the 1950-51 campaign, is back with the Indians after a two-year stint in the Air Force.

Others on the first 16 at the present time are Bill Graddy, Bill Petrick, Bob Raikes and Aksel Schmidt.

Graddy and Petrock are freshman while Raikes is a sophomore. Schmidt, a senior, is a veteran of Papoose play.

The Alumni will hold their second practice tonight on the OU maples. Playing coach Don Pflasterer will lead the graduates against the Indians.

Papooses Play

Papoose Coach Darrel Mudra cut his roster to 17 players last week.

The second team members are Don Blocker, Howard Baker, John Cottrell, Bill Duffack, Merlyn Fratt, LeRue Garrett, Don Hansen and Orville Jensen.

Others are Harry Johnson, Bob Kellams, Bob Klage, Garry Luse, Don Meade, Roger Orr, Bob Sklenar, Tony Roth and Gary White-man.

After the Alumni game the varsity will get set for the regular season opener against the College of Emporia Dec. 1.

Women Play in Badminton Games

The Omaha University Women's Intramural badminton tournament opened last week in the women's physical education hut. Fifteen doubles teams are playing while 44 single contenders are scheduled to play.

Barbara Pugh, chairman of the badminton tournament, urges all players to schedule their playing times on the bulletin board in the west quonset.

Chi Omega and Unaffiliated teams are tied with three wins and one tie as they enter the last round of the OUWI volleyball tournament.

From the Sports Desk . . . School Supporters?

By Frank Schuchart

Early this fall, the Gateway started an intensive campaign for better attendance at football games and for better school spirit. Many of the student organizations went all-out in an effort to bolster the campaign. Just how much we have accomplished is still an uncertainty.

Now, athletic department officials hope to extend the campaign for school spirit and better attendance to the winter basketball competition. Quite some time ago Virgil Yelkin, athletic director and head basketball coach, devised a scheme for promoting basketball sales and spirit with one campaign. Everyone considering Yelkin's idea thought it was a good one. Prospects were high for a good year of Omaha University basketball.

Yelkin's original plan was to have each organization on campus nominate a king or queen of basketball. The members of the organizations would sell season tickets to Omaha home cage encounters, and, the organization selling the largest number of tickets in proportion to its size, would automatically make its candidate the king or queen. Separate competition was to be held for women's and men's groups, with special arrangements made for mixed groups.

But, when the plan was proposed, some organizations complained. They felt that there were already too many events involving competition between organizations. The cry went up, and the Student Council voted out the competition idea. Now the campaign only offers a monetary award to organizations for each duet they sell. Actually, this is no incentive. Although none of the groups are to be considered wealthy. Most of them do not have serious financial trouble.

Newsmen See Cage Review

Members of the local press media were the guests of Coach Virgil Yelkin and his 1952-53 basketball team, Monday night, at this year's edition of the annual Basketball Press night.

The schedule of events got underway at 7:30 in the Fieldhouse. Representatives of the Omaha newspapers and radio and television stations attended.

According to Yelkin, the event was designed to give the local sports writers and sportscasters a preview of the team. Also, it gave them a chance to take pictures and gather information on the team.

The first part of the evening was spent in picture taking and interviews.

The team clashed in a nitro-squad game afterwards.

AF-ROTC Hits Bowling Leaders

Lambda Chi dropped two out of three games to the R. O. T. C. in bowling Thursday afternoon, but they still managed to hang on to the league lead.

ISA, proving to be a serious threat in mural bowling this year, took two out of three from Theta Chi, and strengthened their hold on second place.

Pi Kappa Alpha swept two out of three from the Sig Ep's, and moved into fourth place, a half game behind the R. O. T. C.

Brock Offers Plan To Stop Indians, Bluejay Pranksters

Preparations are being made by a Student Council committee for promoting better relations between Omaha University and Creighton University during the coming basketball and baseball seasons.

The plan, originally devised by Tom Brock, head of the Omaha U. physical education department, has a two-fold purpose.

1. To eliminate ill-feeling between the two schools, and to stop the pranks which cropped up during last year's basketball season.

2. To create good competition and cooperation between OU and Creighton.

Under Brock's plan, the two schools will combine funds and purchase a traveling trophy. As each school wins a basketball or baseball game, it will take over possession of the cup.

In addition, the losing school's Student Council, or in Creighton's case, Board of Governors, will have to paint and display a keg, telling the score of the game and who won, on a downtown corner during a rush hour.

Brock originally devised the plan several years ago while serving as athletic director at Kings College in Wilkesburg, Pa. At that time, Kings College had a similar crosstown rivalry with Wilkesburg College.

That rivalry led to the painting of buildings and also caused some broken windows.

A Letter from the Coach

To the students, faculty, and alumni of Omaha University:

We of the football team and the coaching staff wish to thank all of you who helped us with your support and cooperation during our 1952 season. Your presence and assistance has contributed as much to the success of your team as any coaching staff could; for a team is measured by the amount of enthusiasm and support behind it, as well as its grid prowess.

I am confident that your increased support during the past campaign played an important part in our undefeated season at home.

Again, thank you.

Sincerely,
Lloyd Cardwell,
Head Football Coach.

Hampton Has Son

Psychology instructor C. Eugene Hampton now can put to practical use the theories he has been teaching on child psychology. Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Hampton presented him with their first son.

They named him Mark Leland. Mrs. Hampton, the former Janice Leland, was an OU student.

Theta Chi Pledges Jail Two Actives

All was fine with the Theta Chi business meeting last Thursday until ten minutes after seven when the pledges skipped from the actives.

The first clue was given to the actives at the meeting. This clue led them to Hill Side Stables. There they found a clue written in Morse Code which stumped them for the evening.

Meanwhile the pledges had kidnapped Ed Berney and Sam Marasco and took them to the hiding place which was the South Omaha Jail. Berney and Marasco were locked into one of the cells. To get attention from outside, they threw notes from the window asking the person who picked them up to call Mrs. Marasco. Finally a stranger found a clue ut instead of calling Mrs. Marasco, called Roman Hruska's home, the official headquarters.

The actives had gotten two anonymous phone calls during the evening telling them where the pledges were, but did not believe them until receiving this last call.

When the actives got to the jail the pledges heard them and barricaded the door and the actives didn't reach them until after midnight.

Afterwards, a party was held at Canigilas for both groups.
